

The Rundown Media Group (RDMG) is a new age, Conservative podcast and publishing network designed to educate the masses about the core ideologies held by the Conservative party. RDMG is like nothing ever created before. Our aim is not simply to discredit ideas, but rather to openly discuss and explain the ideologies that are the basis of our platform. We recognize the flaw of mainstream media where the opposition is humiliated for their closely held views. This is not how we intend to educate our viewers; nothing is accomplished for the greater benefit of the party when media groups seek only to appease their bases. RDMG wants to reach across the aisle and address the problems we face as a nation. RDMG aims to restore civil discourse and is going to ensure that Conservative ideologies remain not only prevalent, but also that they become popular amongst Americans. It only takes the disruption of one generation for a political ideology to be completely lost. We will not sit idly by as the Democrats attempt to turn this great nation away from what made it great. We will not allow true Conservatism to be erased from the American political sphere. With your help, Conservatism will not be drowned out. The up and coming generations can still be reached, and the future of this nation will be bright. In a world being destroyed by big government, the United States is an anomaly. We are the standard for a free nation. It is up to us whether or not we maintain that.
